“ On Easter morning at my Grandmas, Roy’s mother, I was sitting in the living room and I just could not stop hiccuping. Uncle Roy looked at me concerned and then asked me a serious sounding question. He said “ Dylan, when was the last time you saw a rabbit running around?” I had thought for a solid 5 minutes and he just stared at me waiting for an answer. I finally told him that i couldn’t remember the last time I had seen a rabbit. He smiled and said that doesn’t matter, but it sure did make you stop hiccuping and now it’s quiet! Every time I hear a kid hiccuping I always look at them and ask them the exact same question. And let me tell you it works every time. And I always say that my Uncle Roy taught me that trick a long time ago. Looking back on it, it makes me thankful I have something I use because of him. I love you Roy. Thank you for impacting my life.
