“ Clifton was a student in two of my philosophy courses at OCU. I knew him as a dedicated student and as someone who could find a way to relate to everyone around him. Because he was so pleasant to be around and so socially gifted, I think other people might not have been aware of his academic talent. I remember a research paper that he wrote in my class as a senior. In spite of the hundreds of books and articles on the people we were reading, he was able to come up with a topic that was entirely original and that turned out to really stand out from the rest of the projects. I think he might have even surprised himself. I would be glad to share it with your family, if you wish.

Death always comes too soon, but especially so in his case. You already know that he had much to offer to the world, but you cannot imagine how much he will be missed.

Sincerely,
