“ I was not aware that James had gone on for several days afterward. I didn't meet him until he moved in across the street from us on West 14th. When we would both be outside we would always wave to each other. I would occasionally go over and visit a bit with him.

They had two little dogs that liked to get out of the fence and come over here to visit with ours. They would try to block the gate but the pups would get out anyway. numerous times, I would carry at least one of them home and we would laugh about how social they were. My condolences to all of you. I'm sure that was hard for Rosemary. I really missed him when they moved to another place.
