“ I always thought she was the best cook on the planet. In kindergarten, I used to beg for seconds at Byars school when she worked there. She wasn't allowed to give seconds, but if there was anything left at the end of lunch she'd drop it off to me at her sister's house. I loved going over to her house and spending time with her grandkids. She taught me how to make fried biscuit donuts and I think of her every time I have them. Mildred, you are missed. Love you!
