“ Nannie; My Angel

On October 4th, 2021 they told us you have terminal lung cancer and sadly there isn't anything they can do this time due to your health declining rapidly and your current health conditions. We brought you home with the news that we had three weeks left with you. I spent every day with you until bedtime each night up until the day God called you home to be a beautiful, pain free, clearly breathing Angel of his. The day called you home was January 10, 2022 at 12:03am. You were/are more than my nannie, you're my best friend, my angel, my rock. I don't know how I'll be able to go on without you here for me to talk to, cry to, wink with, knuckle fight with or watch game shows with all day. You've always been my number 1; and I can't thank you enough for the many many things you've taught me in my 29 years. You're truly 1 that's irreplaceable; and I know you're smiling on all of us. I love you a bushel; and a peck; hug around the neck; bet you're bottom dollar I do.

Love; You're Doodlebug or Turtle
