“ When Sean and Cynthia got married, Sandy called me that night at 11 pm (Calif time!) she was sweet, genuine and very welcoming to me.. I have never forgotten that.. We talked for about 45 minutes...when I actually met her.. It was in San Diego after the birth of our first granddaughter, Emily. Sandy had been there a few days before me.. When I walked in, she immediately handed over the little bundle.. Told me it was "my turn.." And after that allowed me to have as much time as I wanted w/ our granddaughter. We went out to lunch while I was there.. She mentioned a blackberry milkshake on the menu.. I thought she would order it.. But instead just got a small soda...we secretly ordered it for her... When it came.. Her surprise and delight was genuine, heartfelt and I have never forgotten it. She was one of a kind.. You instantly cared about her.
